Not sure what I captured but there are no little white birds out here and I believe that was way too fast to be a bird. If you look very closely as the camera pans down it pauses very briefly before that pan continues down. During the very brief moment you can see a white object shoot out from below the second highest peak on the left. It heads up and slightly to the left. That happens just before the 1 second mark. A moment later it's coming right at the UAV from the mountain I was at 135 feet above my launch point moving at 12 mph. The mountain is well over a mile away and closer to two. Open to suggestions to whatever the heck it is.
